PREFACE.

In "Sturges's Guide to the Game of Draughts," published by the author in 1800, we find fifty-four games and one hundred and forty positions.

The fifty-four games contain 503 distinct variations, and embody the work of Payne, which was published in 1756, and contained fifty games.

Using Payne's book as the foundation, Sturges greatly enlarged the number of variations, and corrected some of his games. Sturges's original book being out of print, Mr. Geo. Walker published a new edition in the year 1835, in which, while he neither added nor omitted a "single game or move," he used his privilege as editor "to subdivide some of the more complex games," by which means Sturges's fifty-four games grew to sixty-nine—fifteen more; and increased the number of positions to 150, and also displayed the positions on diagrams. This edition has been several times re-printed, both in Great Britain and the United States; is also embodied in 'Bohn's Hand-book of Games,' published in 1850, and being the only edition generally accessible, I use it to refer to.

Mr. Walker generally designates the variations by letters; occasionally by numbers; while Sturges in his original edition referred to them by numbers, same as in Sinclair.

In the present edition, I collate the several games under their several openings, transposing the numbers of the squares in those games which begin with the high numbers,—as game 12—and subdivide some few of the openings into parts for convenience of reference.

At the foot of each variation is noted where it is found in Walker's Sturges; and Payne's games are also credited. *s indicate improved moves. Erroneous variations which Sturges corrected himself, I enclose in brackets. Those points where I think Sturges's play can be corrected, I call attention to by letters, and by referring to the end of the opening, the correcting play will be found; also, at the back of the book, I give the play of some additional corrections discovered by myself and others while the games were going through the press.

Mr. Walker threw out some of the original 140 positions, and substituted others in their place. I have re-arranged the positions according to their difficulty, added those rejected by Walker, and those of Payne rejected by Sturges, and also add five more selected from modern play, besides correcting four of Sturges's which were wrong in stipulations.

I also give a complete tabular view of all openings on which play has been published. It will be noted that most are designated by name. Those which are nameless either run into some of those named, or are looked on as weak in the play, and not of sufficient importance to require separate analysis.

By request I also add tabular lists of the corrections known to me of those celebrated works, "The American Draught Player" and "Game of Draughts," by Henry Spayth.

INSTRUCTIONS.

The game is played on a board of sixty-four squares of alternate colors, and with twenty-four pieces, called men, of adverse colors. It is played by two persons; the one having the twelve Black or Red pieces is technically said to be playing the first side, and the other having the twelve White to be playing the second side. The final object of each player may be thus briefly stated: The one endeavors to confine the pieces of the other in situations where they cannot be played, or both to capture and fix so that none can be played; the person whose side is brought to this state loses the game.

The following shows

The men being placed as shown in the frontispiece, the game is begun by each player moving alternately one of his men along the diagonal on which they are situated. The men can only move forward, either to right or left, one square at a time, unless they have attained one of the four squares on the extreme line of the board (technically termed the "crown-head"), on which they become kings, and can move either forward or backward. The pieces take in the direction they move, by leaping over any opposing man that may be immediately contiguous, provided there be a vacant square behind it. If several men should be exposed by having open spaces behind them alternately, they may be all taken at one capture, and the capturing piece is then placed on the square beyond the last man.

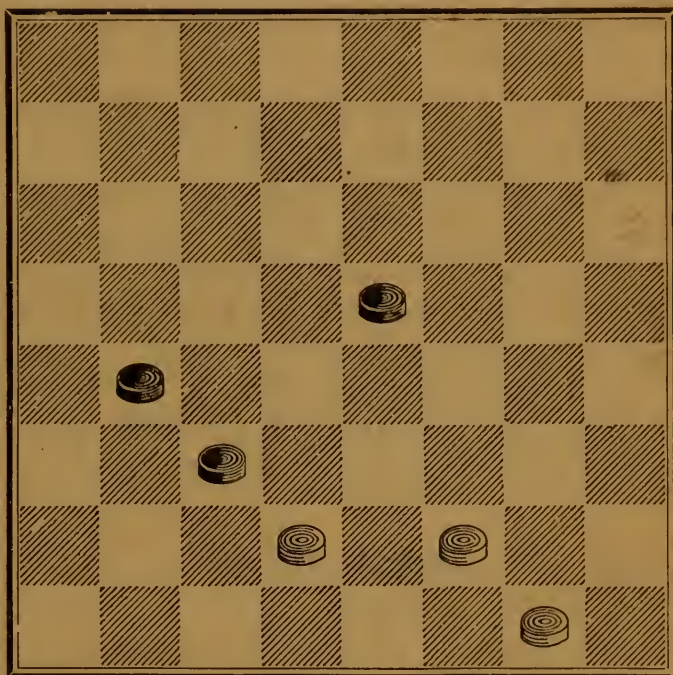

To explain the mode of capturing by a practical illustration, let us begin by placing the men as for a game. You will perceive that Black, who always plays first, can only move one of the men placed on 9, 10, 11 or 12; supposing him then to play the man from 11 to 15, and White answering this by playing from 22 to 18, Black can take the White man on 18 by leaping from 15 to 22, and removing the captured piece from the board. Should Black not take the man on 18, but make another move—say 12 to 16, for instance—he is liable to be "huffed"; that is, White may remove the man (that on 15) with which Black should have taken, off the board for not taking. (See the 16th and 17th Laws.) When one party

"huffs" the other in preference to compelling the take, he does not replace the piece his opponent moved, but simply removes the man huffed from the board, and then plays his own move.

It has already been stated that when a man reaches one of the squares on the extreme line of the board he is crowned, and becomes a king; but there is another point relative to this which it is necessary to explain. The man on thus reaching the crown-head finishes the move on being made a king, and cannot take any piece which may then be liable to capture. To exemplify this, take the following position as an illustration:

BLACK.

WHITE.

Black having to play takes the man on 26, by leaping from 22 to 31, and demands that his man should be crowned; but he cannot take the man on 27 at the same move, which he could do were his piece a king when it made the first capture. White, of course, will play 32 to 28, and recover the man lost. One of the great objects of the game, even at its very commencement, is to push on for a king. But it is unnecessary to dwell longer on the elementary part of the science, as playing through one of the games will do more in the way of teaching the rudiments of Draughts than the most elaborate theoretical explanation. In studying the games, you should have a representation of the numbered diagram on a small card; it is much preferable to fixing the numbers on the squares; and a little practice in this way will shortly enable you to dispense altogether with the card.

You should at first learn one or two variations for each side of every game in this work, and try to keep your opponent in those you have examined; but the moment he leaves off these, exercise your own judgment, not your memory. Remember there ought to be a motive for every move; the perpetually recurring question should therefore be, What will be the result of this one, that one, &c.? Apply this important question at every stage of the game, answer it by calculating the result of every plausible move at the point in question. After a few weeks perseverance in this discipline, you will, if possessed of tolerable memory, find your skill greatly improved. Here we may remark that when you are learning the first side of any of the games you should keep the Black men next you; but when you are studying the second side, you will find it beneficial, to turn the White men next you.

In the Games in this work the left side numbers indicate the squares you play from; those on the right, those you play to; thus, 11-15 signifies—"Play from 11 to 15." The moves of Black are distinguished by the small dash between the figures. The Variations are numbered in natural succession in a line with the word "GAME," at the top of the page; and the indicators that refer to them follow each other in succession down along the columns. Thus, 1 leads to Variation 1; 2 leads to Var. 2, and so on with the rest. The Brace has its central point to the move at which the variations occur; see page 1, variation 3, at 10th move, where it points to 24 19, showing that Vars. 15, 16 and 17 take place at that point.

General Advice.

As to general advice relative to rules or systems for draught-playing, little or nothing could be learned from a volume of such instruction. The various standard modes of opening will be seen by reference to the accompanying games. According to Walker's Sturges, among the few general rules that can be given, you should bear in mind that it is generally better to keep your men in the middle of the board than to play them to the side squares; as, in the latter case, one-half of their power is curtailed. When you have once gained an advantage in the number of your pieces you increase the proportion by exchanges; but in forcing them you must take care not to damage your position. Accustom yourself to play slow at first, and, if a beginner, prefer playing with those who will allow an unconditional time for the consideration of a difficult position, instead of those who rigidly exact the observance of the strict law. Never touch a man without moving it, and do not permit the loss of a few games to ruffle your temper, but rather let continued defeat act as an incentive to greater efforts both of study and practice. When one player is decidedly stronger than another, he should give odds to make the game equally interesting to both parties. There must be a great disparity, indeed, if he can give a man, but it is very common to give one man in a rubber of three games—that is, in one of the three games the superior player engages to play with only eleven men instead of twelve. Another description of odds consists in giving the drawn games—that is, the superior player allows the weaker to reckon as won all games he may draw. Never play with a better player without offering to take such odds as he may choose to give. If you find yourself, on the other hand, so superior to your adversary that you feel no amusement in playing even, offer him odds, and, should he refuse, cease playing with him. Follow the rules of the game most rigorously, and compel your antagonist to do the same—without which the game of Draughts would degenerate to mere child's play. If you wish to improve, play with better players in preference to such as you can beat, and take every opportunity of looking on when fine players are engaged. Never touch the squares of the Board with your finger, and accustom yourself to play your move off-hand when you have once made up your mind without hovering with your fingers over the Board. While you play do not fall into the vulgar habit of incessantly chattering nonsense, and show no impatience at your adversary should he be a little slow. Finally, bear in mind what may well be termed the three golden rules to be observed in playing games of calculation :—Firstly, to avoid all boasting and loud talking about your skill; secondly, to lose with good temper; and thirdly, to win with silence and modesty.

In conclusion, we would strongly advise the student to study and master the theory and practice of the play embraced in the Positions. These endings, in different forms, are of very frequent occurrence, and ought to be thoroughly understood.

STANDARD LAWS OF THE GAME.

The Standard Board.

1. The Standard Board must be of light and dark squares, not less than fourteen nor more than sixteen inches across said squares.
2. The Board shall be placed so that the bottom corner square on the left hand shall be black.

The Standard Men.

3. The Standard Men, technically described as Black and White, must be light and dark (say Red and White, or Black and White), turned, and round, not less than one inch nor more than one and one-fourth inches in diameter.
4. The Men shall be placed on the Black squares. (In England and this country they are often placed for play on the white squares by agreement; and because the Diagrams showing positions, etc., are usually made by type the pieces and figures are placed on White squares in all Checker books.)

Placing the Men.

5. The Black men shall invariably be placed upon the real or supposed first twelve squares of the board; the White upon the last twelve squares.

Order of Play.

6. Each player shall play alternately with Black and White Men, and lots shall be cast for the color only once—viz., at the commencement of a match—the winner to have the choice of taking Black or White.
7. The first move must invariably be made by the person having the Black Men.

Time Limit to Moves.

8. At the end of five minutes (if the move has not been previously made) "Time" must be called in a distinct manner by the person appointed for the purpose, and if the move be not completed on the expiration of another minute the game shall be adjudged as lost through improper delay.

9. When there is only one way of taking one or more pieces "Time" shall be called at the end of one minute, and if the move be not completed on the expiration of another minute the game shall be adjudged as lost through improper delay.

Arranging the Men During a Game.

10. Either player is entitled, on giving intimation, to arrange his own or his opponent's pieces properly on the squares. After the first move has been made, however, if either player touch or arrange any piece without giving intimation to his opponent, he shall forfeit the game; but if it is his turn to play he may avoid the penalty by playing that piece, if possible. (The editor would here observe that in this country this rule is quietly ignored even in money matches when it is obvious that the offender was in fault only from forgetfulness, and that his intention was evidently to rearrange the piece or pieces in a more central position on their squares.)

Touch and Play.

11. After the pieces have been arranged, if the person whose turn it is to play touch one, he must either play it or forfeit the game. When the piece is not playable he is penalised according to the preceding law.

12. If any part of a playable piece be played over an angle of the square on which it is stationed, the play must be completed in that direction.

Capturing Play.

13. A capturing play, as well as an ordinary one, is completed whenever the hand is withdrawn from the piece played, even though two or more pieces should have been taken.

14. When taking, if a player remove one of his own pieces, he cannot replace it, but his opponent can either play or insist on his replacing it.

False or Improper Moves.

15. Either player making a false or improper move shall instantly forfeit the game to his opponent without another move being made.

The "Huff" or "Blow."

16. The "Huff" or "Blow" is, before one plays his own piece, to remove from the board any one of the adverse pieces that might or should have taken. But the "Huff" or "Blow" never constitutes a move.

17. The player has the power either to Huff, compel the take, or to let the piece remain on the board, as he thinks proper (but it is the custom in this country to "compel the take."—EDITOR.)

Crowning the Men.

18. When a Man first reaches any of the squares on the opposite extreme line of the board it becomes a "King," and can be moved backwards or forwards as the limits of the board permit (though not in the same play), and must be crowned (by placing a man on the top of it) by the opponent; if he neglect to do so, and play, any such play shall be put back until the Man be crowned.

Drawn Games.

19. A Draw is when neither of the players can force a Win. When one of the sides appears stronger than the other the stronger party is required to complete the win, or to show, to the satisfaction of the umpire or referee, at least a decided advantage over his opponent within forty of his own moves—to be counted from the point at which notice was given—failing in which, he must relinquish the game as a draw.

Note.—It must be remembered that when the forty moves have been called, it is sufficient if the stronger party in the forty moves shows "a decided advantage," and it is not necessary for him to block or capture all his adversary's pieces, as there are positions so intricate that he may not have been able to do so, even after making the very best moves at all points.—EDITOR.

Conduct of Players and Spectators.

20. Anything which may tend either to annoy or distract the attention of the players is strictly forbidden—such as making signs or sounds, pointing or hovering over the board, unnecessarily delaying to move a piece touched, or smoking. Any principal so acting, after having been warned of the consequence, and requested to desist, shall forfeit the game.

21. While a game is pending, neither player is permitted to leave the room without a sufficient reason, or receiving the other's consent or company.

22. Any spectator giving warning either by sign, sound, or remark on any of the games, whether played or pending, shall be ordered from the room during the match, and play may be discontinued until such offending party retires.

Match Games.

23. A match between equals, wins and draws to count, should consist of an even number of games, so that each player may have the first move the same number of times.

Enforcement of the Laws.

24. Either player committing a breach of any of these laws must submit to the penalty, and his opponent is equally bound to exact the same.

Unforeseen Disputes.

25. Should any dispute occur not satisfactorily determined by the preceding laws, a written statement of facts must be sent to a disinterested arbiter having a knowledge of the game, whose decision shall be final.

THEORY OF THE MOVE.

When the men are so situated that, in the ordinary course of the play, you can force your opponent's pieces into a confined position, you have what is technically termed "the Move."

The Move.

To have the move, signifies the occupying of that position on the board which (in playing piece against piece without regard to the others, till one square intervene between the pieces in each pair) will eventually cause the player who occupies that position to have the last play.

Several rules for the calculation of the move have been published, but the editor has always found the following concise rule credited to Alonzo Brooks, of Buffalo, sufficient for practical purposes, and uses no other.

Calculation of the Move.

For this purpose the squares of the board are divided into two systems of four columns each.

The columns of one system are those numbered upwards from squares 1, 2, 3, 4.

The columns of the other system are those numbered downwards from squares 29, 30, 31, 32.

Rule.

Add together all the pieces in either system, and if their sum is odd, it being your play, you have the move. If even, your opponent has the move.

The Changes of the Move.

Add together all of the capturing pieces in both systems, and if they are the same as the captured pieces in each system—that is, both odd or both even—the move is not changed, but if they are reverse to each other (one odd and the other even) the move is changed.

Mr. William R. Bethell, of Philadelphia, also suggests that when one side has a man superiority over the other, he has in practice always found it sufficient to disregard or throw out the extra man and proceed as before. So also when two pieces are forked—that is, fixed or kept in check by one—one of them should be left out in the calculation of the move.

“The Move” in many positions wins the game, in others it enables a draw to be secured, while in some instances, from the peculiarity of the situation, the player having the move loses the game. Hence, the importance of the knowledge which enables one to judge whether or not he should seek to gain “The Move,” as local position must also be taken into account.

It is a mistaken notion that any advantage is derived from playing first. It is admitted that he who plays first has not the move, the men and squares being then both even; but though he who plays second has the move, it can be of no service to him in that stage of the game. The truth is, that when the combatants continue giving man for man, the move will alternately belong to the one and the other. The first player will have it at odd men, at 11, 9, 7, 5, 3 and 1; the second player will have it at even men, at 12, 10, 8, 6, 4 and 2, and therefore some error must be committed on one side or the other before the move can be forced out of that direction.

THE
SELECTED PROBLEMS.

---

Comprises 421 quarto pages, embracing 1030 critical positions by 262 players of Great Britain and America.

The problems are printed distinctly, on diagrams three inches square, and four are given on each page. The solutions have about 3000 variations, and average 40 moves each. Over 300 games from all the standard openings are given, each game ending in a problem.

The work contains besides an alphabetical index of the 262 authors, a numerical index of the whole number of problems originated and compiled by the celebrated player and author, Mr. R. E. Bowen, of Millbury, Massachusetts. The Laws of the Game; Names of Openings; Theory of the Move; Signs; Instructions, and an Exercise on the squares of the board, are also given.

The whole work is printed in large plain type, and weighs 41 ounces.

Price $3.00, Postage Prepaid to Any Address. If players desire book sent by the Registered mail, accompany remittances with 10 cents in stamps for the Post Office fees. Make remittances by Draft on New York, Money Order or Registered letter. Players of Great Britain can remit to ROBERT MCCALL, No. 145 Dundas street, City, Glasgow, Scotland. American players can address the compiler as follows:

Corrections of Single Corner.—Part II.

6—A.

(At the 7th move of Var. 6, the A was omitted by an oversight. Our readers will do well to mark the A opposite 12-16.)

31 26*	5 9	30 5	15 19
1 5	19 15	6 10	23 18
17 13	10 19	5 1	19 24
